Brand New Book  Print on Demand .What do we see in the mind when we look at the Sun? Thats a basic question. Do we see a blazing fireball powered by nuclear fusion within, in a super-hot environment where hydrogen gas is fused into helium? If this is how the Sun is seen, the viewer is deceived by a fairy tale. Fairy tales are often chosen as bed-time stories to put children to sleep. How about seeing the true Sun? It has the potential to wake society up. With the next Ice Age on the near horizon, potentially beginning in the 2050s, which cannot be recognized in the land of fairy tales, the recognition of the true nature of the Sun, that drives the Ice Age dynamics, becomes an existentially critical issue. Being asleep, we may die in the easy chair when the glaciation conditions resume. Plasma in the physical universe is as challenging in perception as the spiritual domain in the human sphere. Both are invisible, except by their effects, but they are understandable and knowable. But how does one break away from the fairy tales that inspire delusions? Answers must be found. With the Ice Age Challenge now before us, we face two imperatives. One is to understand the real physical dynamics that power and affect the Sun, and with it to create the physical infrastructures that enable human living to continue in an Ice Age climate. The second challenge, and this is the greater challenge, is to raise up our humanity to such height as will impel us to get the job done. Some say that miracles are needed on both fronts. But what of it? Are...
